The final results of the GENDER 101 project

The Gender 101 project allowed Partners in six different European countries to create a discussion channel with educators and parents on the topic of gender diversity. Through the work of the experts, a Masterclass was created with different inputs, together with an accompanying guide for trainers to deliver this Masterclass.

An online, free, accessible tool, is also available for parents, who can seek researched answers to their queries on gender diversity. Ultimately, the work done and the tools created are aimed to allow for the subject of gender diversity to be discussed and to allow parents to accompany their children throughout their growth.

The last transnational project meeting in Malta

The final in-person meeting was held in Malta on the 13th May 2024.

During the meeting a final round up and overview of the project was carried out, with inputs from all the partners. The meeting also served to understand the final upcoming deadlines and to review the documentation related to the final evaluation process, on which the partners will be working on during the final months of the project.

A final online meeting is scheduled to take place in September 2024.
